[FOR THE EXPOSITOR.] JERUSHA JANE.

Tis many years since I fell in love
With Jane Jerusha Skeggs.
The handsomest country girl, by far,
That ever went on legs.
By meadow. creek, woods and dell,
So often did we walk.
And the moonlight smiled on her rosy lips,
And the night-winds learned our talk.

Jerusha Jane was all to me,
For my heart was young and true;
And I loved with a double and-twisted love,
And a love that was honest, too.
I roamed all over the neighbors' farms,
And I robbed the wild-wood bowers,
And tore my trowsers, and scratched my hands,
In search of choicest flowers.

In my joyous love I brought them all To my Jerusha Jane; But I would not be so foolish now, If I had that chance again. For a city chap came along, All dressed up in fine clothes, With a shiny hat and a flashing vest, And a monstache under his nose.

He talked to her of singing schools,
As they roamed o'er her father's farm,
And she left me, her country lover,
And took the new chap's arm.
All that night I never slept,
Nor could I can next day;
For I loved that girl with twisted love,
That naught could drive away.

I strove to win her back to me, Istrove to win her back to me,
But it was all in vain,
And the city chap with the hairy lip,
Married my Jerusha Jane,
And my poor heart was sick and sore,
Until the thought struck me,
That Just as good fish still remained
As ever were caught in the sea.

So I went to the Methodist church one night-There I saw a dark brown curl;
And I'll bet my boots and hat,
I'll marry that very girl.
E're many months have passed and gone
I'll think my loss again,
And I'll often bless the city chap,
That stole Jerusha Jane.

A MEXICAN ROMANCE.

I had been riding hard all day, and already the dry, dusty plains of the State of Tamaulipas were fast merging into the hilly country around Santa Rosa. My little Mexican pony began to show signs of fatigue, and I myself felt that a night's rest was absolutely necessary. The heat had been intense, and water scarce, as it always is through a country where rain is almost unknown. My horse's head at tested the extent of his thirst : my tongue clove to the roof of my mouth, and it was with a longing sufferers from thirst can alone appreciate that I strained my eyes to discover some sign of habitation through the fast gathering gloom. At last, much to my delight, I could distinguish the outlines of a hut, where I was sure of rest, if not of absolute welcome. Hospitality to the stranger is not one of the striking features of the Mexican character, especially to travelers : but carrying little to tempt the cupidity of my host and hostess, I cared very little for the reception I was likely to get. My poor, jaded beast must have snuffed water and a coming supper, for all at once he accelerated his pace, and before long I was dismounting in front of a large, well built harial and in the best Spanish I could muster, was asking for food and shelter. "It is a Gringo," I heard a voice, the softest and sweetest I ever heard, sav. The accents were so sweet that, in spite of the opprobrious epithet applied to all toreigners, I listened eagerly to hear them again.

They were not repeated, and a man, tall and brawny. I could see in the gloaming, came out of the house and bade me welcome, taking my horse and bidding me enter at the same time. I needed no second bidding, and entering found myself in the interior of a Mexican but such as are strewed along all the highways of Mexico, built of mud or adobe, with palmetto or grass roofs, but this one showed a degree of care and comfort entirely foreign to the many I had seen.

Supper was already spread, not on the floor, as is the usual style, but on a side table, and consisted of goat's milk, dried beef and tortillas, the national substitute for bread, to which was added a pone of if they could see him now," and he gave genuine American corn-bread. I was bewildered! Corn-bread and Mexicans were irreconcilable, yet my hostess, as well as beauty of the family, the curly headed, the old crone who sat by the fire, were undoubtedly natives.

Pondering the strange anomaly, I began to watch my hostess. She, with a light, elastic tread, moved about, placing another plate on the table, and preparing a hammock for my accommodation. My interest had already been awakened by a voice of which I was sure she was the possessor, but even had such not been the case my attention would have been riveted by her great physical beauty. That she was of the pure Indian blood, with no foreign admixture, my experience among Mexicans assured me. She was tall-taller than the majority of her race, even among the men-lithe and well proportioned. The low, tight bodice, common to her class, displayed a neck and arm exquisitely moulded, whose color alone, to my eye, detracted from their perfect beauty. Her eyes were large, dark, and full of sweetness, while her lips cannot wasn't all fun, marching through chaparfrom which should issue those sounds, sweet and musical, that still lingered on my ear. The straight, long, black hair was plaited and wound around her head. forming a natural coronet.

I was still admiring her when the master of the house entered. As the light fell upon him I no longer wondered at the civilization evidenced around me; for though the once fair skin was browned to almost as tawny a bue as a native's and the ardent Mexican sun had tanned the light hair to red, yet I knew Mexican soil Lad never conferred such tints on one of her children, and, even before he spoke. I before me

"Stranger." he said abruptly, using the Mexican idiom, "are you French or English ?"

"Neither, I am an American." "Then thrice welcome to the poor comforts Silas Wright can afford you," dropping the Spanish for his native tongue, that seemed far less familiar than the language he had hitherto used. "It's a long time since I've had the chance of hav. ing one of my countrymen under the same roof with me, and you're none the less welcome for that, stranger," and he held out his large, brawny hand for the national salutation. I was not slow to

At the word "American," Anita-so my host called the young beauty-turned a look beaming with pleasurable surprise on me, and murmured words of welcome.

"You're all right on that side of the house," said Silas, laughingly, "for all Americans rank next to me in their ideas ideas of perfection, though you mightn't think much of such a fellow as I an," stroking his tawny whiskers as he spoke. "It's no use talking to-night, for you need rest, and unless it's a mighty urgent business calls you, I don't intend you shall leave to morrow. So, to supper, then to bed :" and, suiting the action to the word, we were soon busy with our meal, which no s oner finished, then I sought my hammock.

The next day I found that even were I so inclined I could not continue my journey, for my horse was stiff and unfit to travel. I was not sorry of the excuse, for I was anxious to learn something of my host. On inquiry I found that he cultivated Indian corn and such vegetables as could be induced to grow by irrigation, of chickens, which he sent or took to the nearest town-besides being blacksmith and wheelwright to passing travelers and to the neighboring haciendas. He thus managed to eke out a comfortable living for himself, Anita and the old crone, who I ascertained was his mother in-law. This was the present, but it was of the past I wanted to hear.

"How long have you been in this country?" I asked, as we sat smoking our after dinner pipes.

"Some fifteen years." "Why, that was about the time of the Mexican war." "Just so. You've hit the nail on the head this time, for I came here in the midst of it."

"Won't you tell me about it?" "No objection," he said, "though it isn't much after its told. I was born away up in Maryland." he continued, "and was the youngest of seven children, consequently was the baby of the family. They would not think much of their baby one of his short, quick laughs. "I don't think the home-folk would recognize the blue-eyed, baby Silas. It's well to tell people of some things, or they'd never find them out, and my good looks is one of them; but it's true, nevertheless. Well, I was pretty much as all babies of seventeen are, as harum-scarum a scamp as King Charles county could boast, and my wild doings were talked of far and wide. I was seventeen when the Mexican war broke out, and I declared my intention of joining the army. You may be sure there was a terrible to-do about it; but the upshot was, that I was down to New Orleans with my regiment before the old folks found out I was in earnest. I received lots of letters telling me what a naughty boy I was, yet begging me to come back, but they didn't do much good. I was in for it, and liked it firstrate, too. We got down to Mexico, and then it fighting right well, and we got plenty of it under old 'Fuss and Feathers.'

At last, in the battle of Cherubusco, I was knocked over and never knew any. thing until I opened my eyes in just such a looking place as this, and saw the prettiest face I'd ever seen bending over me. Then I heard a voice, and although I didn't understand a word, as my education, especially the Spanish part, had been somewhat neglected. I thought it must be an angel's, voice, if angels talk, it sounded so soft and liquid. Then the young girl clapped her hands, and presfelt sure one of my countrymen stood ently an old lady, who wasn't made any handsomer by contrast, came and stood alongside of me too. I didn't make much headway understanding her jargon, but managed to make out that they were pleased at something. It was not long, however, before I found out that if ever I opened my eyes to the daylight I had them to thank for it, for my wounds were dressed, and teas and other doctoring poured down my throat. I might have been a little afraid of drinking them if I hadn't been too weak to care much what became of me. I did not get my strength very fast though, and it was good three months before I was able to creep about.

In the meantime I had learned a great deal of their language, for it would have been a sorry fellow of nineteen that would not learn with such a teacher. I had taken another lesson and learned it by heart, that was love for the pretty Anita. as I felt mighty loth to return to duty Besides, Anita assured me the war was almost over. I was glad enough to believe her, for she would cry so at the thought of my leaving her, and my own heart felt so heavy; at last I concluded to marry her. That's just what I did, and I would not exchange her for the fairest lady in old Maryland. I've seen you watch her, and I needn't ask you if she isn't the handsomest woman you've seen for many a day," and Silas Wright followed, with eyes beaming with love, the form of his wife, as she passed to and fro at her daily

"That's the way I've made her forget the baby face," he resumed, coming to my side. "Here the women are all hewers of wood and drawers of water; but that wasn't what I'd been taught at home, and I've never acted with her any differently than if she'd been one of our own women; so she thinks me something above mortals, rough and uncouth as I may seem to

"Did you never write home?"

"No not I. What was the use? I was reported missing; that was as good as dead. The old folks, no doubt, cried over me for dead : so it was all over, and there wasn't any use in having the fuss all over again. Beside, they might not have liked their daughter-in-law, and I wouldn't give her up for the best estate in Maryland,' and my host knocked the ashes from his pipe with an emphasis that left no doubt as to his sincerity.

STRIPPING THE WIDOW.—Some years ago in the New Hampshire legislature, a new member, somewhat noted for "pumping thunder," made a speech-it was upon a bill for taxing bank dividends-in which he attempted to be very pathetic in favor of widows who owned bank stock. "Yes Mr. Speaker," he exclaimed with indignant energy, "the gentleman from Dover who introduced this bill, deaf to the cries of her orphan children, would strip the shall be gentle, loving and kind. That widow-" but before he could conclude the sentence he was interrupted by a laugh. Astonished, but undaunted, he thoughts and ambitious plans, for when exclaimed with a profound feeling : "Gentlemen, it is not the subject of derision. greatest purposes her love remains to con-I appeal to you in all candor to say if it sole you. You look upon the trees for is not worse than stripping. Put on this strength and grandeur; do not despise the tax and you will drive the widow to her flowers because their fragrance is all they last shift." Shouts of laughter here pet- have to give. Remember, love is all that rified him in his place, and he spoke no more during the session.

PAT'S IDEA OF THE DIVINITY .- A friend who we shall call Pat, for short, tells us the following good story about himself: When but an idle boy he was called up in a country school and the question suddenly propounded by the pedagogue: 'Patrick, how many Gods are there?" Patrick was not a distinguished theologian then and years have made him no better, very fast, in such matters, but he promptly responded:

"Three, sir."

"Take your seat," thundred the master. and if in five minutes you don't answer correctly, I'll welt von.'

The probationary period passed and Pat, taking the floor hesitatingly, stated the number of Gods at :

" Five. six."

He received the promised welting and returned to his seat-ten minutes for con-

Ten minutes up, Pat was up, too, and satisfied that he hadn't placed the number sufficiently high before, shouted :-

"There's ten, sir." He saw the ferule descending, and boltng out of the door, he cleared a five rail fence and broke like a quarter horse across the field. Panting with exertion; he met a lad with a book under his arm. and with the look of one desiring the pursuit of knowledge under difficulties.

"Where are you going?" asked Pat.

"To school yonder," was the reply. "You are, are you?" said Pat quietly. "How many Gods are there?"

"One," answered the boy. "Well, you'd better not go there. You will have a good time with your one God. I've just left there with ten, and that wasn't enough to save me from the darndest licking you ever heard of." HADN'T JINED 'EM YET .- We heard good thing recently that every member of the Free and Accepted Masons will be apt to have a good laugh over, and for that reason we will send it on its travels: A rather verdant young man, whose features exhibited every symptom of having been slightly tinged with emerald, quite recently entered a jewelry store in New York, and gazing earnestly in the show case remarked:

"You've got a heap of mighty pretty breast pins thar; what mought you tax for 'em ?"

"What sort of a pin would you like to

"You havn't ary one with a little gold hand saw laid across it, hev you?" interrupted the would be purchaser.

"I believe not sir" said the merchant. "Wish ver had: it would just suit me exactly. I'm just out of my time, and going to set up as a carpenter and liner. and I thought I'd like some sort of sign to wear about me, so folks would have an idea who I was. What do you tax for that ar pin you've got yer hand on ?"

"Seven dollars," said the merchant, producing a compass and square surrounding the letter G.

"Seven dollars, eh !" said the youth. I'll take it-sorry yer didn't have the hand saw though. But reckon everybody will understand it. The compass to meastire out the work an the square to see it's all right after it's done measured, and every darned fool orter know that G stands for gimlet.'

In Augustine Daly's great play, "Under the Gaslight," Laura Courtland utters these beautiful sentiments:

"Let the woman you look upon be wise or vain, beautiful or homely, rich or poor, she has but one thing she can really give or refuse-her heart. Her beauty, her wit, her accomplishments, she may sell to you-but her love is the treasure without money and without price. She only asks in return that when you look upon her, your eyes shall speak a mote devotion; that when you address her, your voice you shall not despise her because she cannot understand, all at once, your vigorous misfortune and evil have defeated your a woman can give-but it is the only earthly thing which God permits us to carry beyond the grave.

An old farmer, about the time that the temperance reform began to exert a healthful interest in the country said to his hired man !

"Jonathan, I did not think to mention to you when I hired you that I think of trying to do my work this year without. rum. How much more must I give you to do without?"

"Oh, I don't care much about it," said Jonathan, "you can give me what you please."

"Well," said the farmer, "I will give you a sheep in the Fall, if you will do without it.'

"Agreed," said Jonathan. The oldest son then said:

"Father, will you give me a sheep too, if I do without rum ?"

"Yes, Marshall, you shall have a sheep if you do without."

The youngest son, a stripling then said: "Father, will you give me a sheep if I do without ?"

"Yes, Chandler, you shall have a sheep also, if you do without rum."

Presently Chandler spoke again! "Father, hadn't you better take a sheep

DRUNK BUT ONCE .- "You have but five minutes to live," said the Sheriff, "if you have anything to say, say it now." The young man said : "I had a little brother He had beautiful eyes and flaxen hair, and I loved him. One day I got drunk-the first time in my life-and coming home I found my little brother in the garden, and I became angry without cause, and killed him with one blow of the rake. I did not know anything about it till the next day when I awoke and found myself bound and tied, and was told that my little brother was dead. Whiskey had done it. It had ruined me. I was never drunk but once. I have only one more word to say, and then I am going to my Judge. I say, young men, never touch anything that can intoxicate." In another moment the young man was ushered into the presence of his God.

A HINT TO LOVERS OF FRENCH WINE. -A good story is told of an American traveling in Paris. Having occasion to take a bath, his physician recommended a wine bath. In the employ of the establishment there was a colored man, whom he had known in America, and of him he enquired how they could give a wine bath for 75 cents. "Why, massa," said the negro, "that wine has been in the bath. room for one week, and you is thirtyeighth person that has bathed in it." Well, I suppose they throw it away when they are done with it." "Oh, no, massa; they send it down stairs for the poor people, who bathe for twenty five cents." "And then what do they do with it ?" "Bottle it up and send it to America, where they sell it for French wine."

COURTING A FAT GIRL .- Don Piat says. I was once in love with a fat girl; she was very fleshy; she was enormous; but the course of my true love came to grief: I was sitting with her in the dim twilight one evening; I was sentimental; I said many soft things : I embraced part of her. She seemed distant. She frequently turned her lovely head from me. At last I thought I heard the murmur of voices on the other side. I arose and walked around, and then I found another fellow courting her on the left flank. I was indignant, and unbraided her for her treach. ery in thus concealing from me another lover She laughed at my conceit, as if she were not big enough to have two lovers at once.

THE RESULT.—A man in Trenton bet that he could drink fourteen glasses of icewater at one sitting. His widow has already made two hundred yards of carpet rags out of his shirts, and his pantaloons are not even touched vet.

"FATHER," said a roguish boy, "I hope von won't buy any more gunpowder tea for mother." "Why not." Because every time she drinks it she blows me up." 'Go to bed immediately; you've staid up long enough," said the father.

PETERS & CO.

WE ask our brethren of the press to join us in a crusade against the Postal Department. We want a tri-weekly mail re-established over the route from Stockton to Millerton and Visalia. By rights the service should be daily, but we will be content with a tri-weekly. It has been a tri-weekly service for many years, but has been abandoned to satisfy some whim or caprice of the Department. When the route was first established as a tri-weekly there were but a few hundred people depending upon the route for their mails. now there are several thousand. In this county alone a population of nearly two thousand souls live contiguous to the offices receiving their mails by this route. We do not know whether the route as a tri-weekly is remunerative to the Government or not, but we think it paid expenmakes no difference. The Post-office Department is run, not as a money making machine, but for the public accommodation. All other communities of any note, and many of them that are not important, are furnished with greater mail facilities than are we. The people want more frequent mail service. They must have it, sooner or later, even though the additional service has to be paid out of private pockets. If mail routes are to be abandoned in order to let contractors crawl out of bad bargains, as was undoubtedly the case in this instance, it is about time people were informed of the fact. If the Postal Agent of the Pacific Coast does his duty, which is doubtful, he will get a tri-weekly service on this route, reinstated. It is necessary and must be done.

CANDIDATES .- A large number of candidates are being spoken of by the press of the State for the various State officers at the election sext year, and among the number we notice the name of Joseph Roberts, of Grass Valley, mentioned in connection with the office of State Controller. We have nothing to say against Mr. Roberts, but we have heard the name of a gentleman proposed for that office who, in our opinion, is far better suited to the position in ever way than the Grass Valley aspirant. We allude to the Hon Jas. H. Lawrence, of Mariposa. We do spoken of in connection with it.

NEW DRESS .-- We are pleased to notice that our old and acceptable friend the Placer Herald has donned a new dress, and now looks as bright and sharp as a bran l new pin. The Herald is the oldest and one of the ablest Democratic papers in the State. It has witnessed all the mutations of the party in this State, during the eighteen years of its existence. It has fought for the party in the flush of victory, and battled manfully for it, when defeat was settling fast upon the party banners, and certain and speedy dissolu tion seemed inevitable. Still it has struggled bravely in the good cause and is now reaping the reward of its fidelity. Bro. Walkup, accept our congratulations and best wishes for the success of you and

Hon. PHIL. A. ROACH, in his speech before the anti-Coolie meeting in Oakland, said that, according to the estimate of the Society for the Protection of Chinese, there are 17,500 of that race in San Francisco and 1,040 in Marysville. There are probably in California 50,000 Chinamen to our 110,000 voters. If the radicals succeed in making them citizens, there is no class or interest safe in the State. Having no feelings in common with our people and country, and ignorant alike of its laws and language, they would vote in a body for the man or party that could pay them best.

WE wish some of the Senators or Congressmen from this State would interest themselves to enquire into the miserable mail facilities the people of this section are compelled to put up with, and endeavor to have them improved. We might as well ask an improvement from the Sultan of Turkey, as to try to get it by appeal to the humbug known as the Post Office Department.

ELECTION FOR SUPERVISOR .- The Board of Supervisors at their session last week, ordered an election for a Supervisor for this District, to fill the place of J. G. Simpson, Esq., whose term of office expires this Fall. As yet no one has offered himself as a candidate for this most responsible position, though several different names have been mentioned in connection with it. Too much care cannot be exercised in selecting men to fill this important, honorary, and yet very onerous office. A man is wanted who is public spirited and who will not shirk responsibilites no matter in what form they may come. By all means do not elect a spendthrift, but at the same time it is equally necessary not to have one who is parsimonious. What is wanted is a man who will work for the welfare of the county. and who will not consider money spent for proper and needful improvements as wasted. Against the retiring member no one can say a word, but on the contrary volumes can be said in his favor. When he took his seat on the Board, the county was heavily involved in debt, and leaves it with the debt entirely wiped out. He refuses, however, to be reelected, and we do not think it exactly fair to try to force it upon him again. It is asking too much of him. Let some other person sacrafice a little time for the benefit of his county. Divide the burthen around so that it will not be felt so much.

We have heard the name of Captain John Darby incidentally mentioned with the position. We hope he will consent to run. He can afford the luxury as well as any other responsible citizen that we know of and from what we can learn he will be ses or very nearly last year; but that just the man for the positson, and we ask earnestly that he permit his name to be used as a candidate for the office.

> WE learn that the assessment roll of this county, this year, will show nearly four million dollars worth of taxable property in this county. Last year there was something over three million. Our property, too, is assessed at a low figure. land being valued at the nominal rate of one dollar and a quarter per acre, and other property proportionately low. Say our county isn't growing in wealth, despite its disadvantages. Is it not about time we were having some substantial public improvements, such as a few substantial bridges across the differet streams, and one or two good school buildings with first-class schools. The more induce ments of this kind (for public improvements are inducements) held out, the more rapidly will our wealth and population increase, and that we have pressing need for these improvements, for our present population none can deny.

WINE INTERESTS .- California wines are beginning to be appreciated in the Eastern markets, and doubtless our wine growing interests are yet in their infancy The Alta states that a firm in San Franhouse a large order for California wines, They wanted to gag the people, because not know that he seeks the position but probably the largest ever received on the they intended to rob them. we have heard his name very favorably coast for those articles. It consists of 10, 000 gallons of brandy, and 10,000 gallons of white wine, to be made from the new vintage, and forwarded thereafter as soon as possible. This firm also received a few days ago from Chicago, another large order to be forwarded immediately.

> THE Snelling Argus says there is a man in that section very desirous of hauling his wheat over here and competing for the Fresno market, if the price is what we stated—three cents a pound in cash. How extensive the market is we do not know, but we do know that we have seen both wheat and barley sold in quantities as high as a ton at a time, for three cents a pound in gold. We are well aware that the price is out of all proportion, but it can't be helped. But little grain is raised in this county, and the freights are so very high that goods are worth nearly their weight in gold when they get here.

THE Chicago Tribune says the extravagance and wanton waste of money by the Senate are notorious and should be checked by the people. There are needed some men of ability an I firmness in the Senate who will boldly resist and expose this recklessness of expense. Any one of the seventy-two Senators can win for himself a national reputation who will take upon himself the duty and labor of vigilantly exposing and vigorously opposing the irresponsible mode of appropriating public money practiced by that body.

FROM Mr. Fleming, driver on Bennett's stage between here and Visalia, we learn that telegraphic news has been received at the last named place of the capture of the Prussian town of Saarbucken by the French, on Thursday, and its recapture by the Prussians, and of a a fight between the two armies in Rhenish Bavaria, in which the Prussians were victorious the first day. On Saturday a battle was being fought, and the French were striving to regain the ground they had lost.

A VENIRE was ordered on Saturday last for fifty trial jurors, for the September term of the County Court.

ONLY ONE PARTY.-The Sacramento Reporter says, the Democracy, since the demise of the old Whig party, can claim with truth to have had the only political organization, strictly speaking, in this country. True, there has always been an opposing element, but from its unprincipled and ephemeral character it could hardly be dignified with the name of a party. The contests of the Whigs and Democrats were fought on well defined principles of government, under the leadership of statesmen and patriots. Then the Democtacy had to meet a foe worthy of its steel, and one that could always be found battling for certain distinct and broadly marked doctrines. They knew just what they had to contend with and where to find them. The dodging and shifting policy of latter days was comparatively unknown. Defeat never caused an abandonment of principles. The old land-marks were not lost sight of in the gloom and distress of adversity. Expediency and policy were words of much less significance than they are now. But with the dissolution of the Whig party all this was changed. Then our opponents, no longer able to keep the field with a disciplined army, and to contend with us for well settled principles of government, resorted to a guerilla warfare, shifting, dodging, changing their name and doctrines to suit the emergencies of the hour. Thus we have had to contend with Freesoilers, Abolitionists, Know-Nothings, Republicans and half a dozen other factions under various names. In the case of the present opposition we find them known as Republicans, Unionists, Radicals, Federalists, and then Republican again. As to principles, their platforms have changed as often as their names. The Democracy of to-day, as in the past, stand by certain fundamental principles. In the shadow of defeat or in the sunshine of victory they have remained unchanged. The party can proudly point to its record, with nothing to conceal or hide from the closest scrutiny. It is an organization born of and with the Government of our country, and destined to endure as long as there is a vestige of Constitutional liberty remaining with the American people.

IN PEACE OR IN WAR .-- If there be one question on earth which the people ought to canvass freely, says the Philadelphia Age, it is the question of peace or war-There are plenty of politicians in every country who have an interest in fomenting wars. Glad enough they are of a pretext for silencing every voice that criticises their aims or their acts. But let every free people cherish the right of free speech, and trust to it always as the best mode of establishing truth and combatting all errors of opinion, That is the Democratic principle. In 1812 it maintained the national cause and respected private liberty, while the insolent violations of private right, by profligate and radical politicians during the late conflict, did no good to anybody but themselves.

HOME AGAIN .- We are pleased to welcome our esteemed friend and respected citizen, H. C. Daulton, back among us again. He arrived on Wednesday evening of last week. He says he enjoyed his trip back to the land of his birth very much. He likes the country and the people where he visited, but he says the atmosphere is a trifle too hot to suit him. We are very glad the people did not capture him, as we learn they tried very hard.

WE have noticed a statement going the rounds of the press that the United States Marshal for this State, has instructed his assistants, the census takers, to roport all instances, with proof, of State officers collecting foreign miner's tax from the Chinese, with a view of punishing them under the provisions of the Enforcement bilk. We do not see how this is to be accomplished. The foreign miner's tax in this State, as the law stands, applies equally to all foreigners.

THE Snelling Argue and the Maripose Press will accept thanks for a slash or two directed at the Postal Department.

A HANDSOME COMPLIMENT,-The following handsome compliment and acknowledgment of the abilities and services of a California Senator, is contained in a late number of the Pittsburg Post: "The workingmen of New York have nominated Hon. Eugene Casserly for President. Senator Casserly, the abla Senator from California, is a mative of New York, and certainly one of the foremost statesmen of the day. He is in favor of white laboring men over coolies; and has the affection of the hardy sons of toil of the United States. They might go further and fare worse."

CAPTAIN SHUFELDT will command the expedition for exploring for a canal across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. Congress appropriated fifty thousad dollars for that purpose at its last session, that amount being thought sufficient for conducting the survey to a satisfactory conclusion. Scientific men say that there is no doubt of the fact that such a work is practicable, and the only question to be considered is

which resulted in the instant killing of
The consumption of the Great Vegetable Tonic one man, and the wounding of an other.
The particulars, as near as we can gain them from the many reports in circulation, are as follows: A man named B. A. Andrews, a farmer on the river, was walking along the road from his house towards his field, and was carrying in his hand a double-barreled shot-gun. Jerry Ridge into print. Since the introduction of the BITway, who was in an intoxicated condition, was riding along the same road, in company with two or three other men, who were returning from Centreville to their habitations. When near Andrews' house and its admirable adaptation to the wants of a Ridgeway started his horse up and rode ahead of the party, but shortly returned it is supposed upon seeing Andrews—and seizing his revolver from one of the party, who had previously taken it from him, wheeled his horse and returned up the road at a fast gait, the rest of the party rapidly following. When he got nearly up to Andrews he charged upon him, and Andrews wheeled about to meet him. A difference of opinion exists as to who fired difference of opinion exists as to who fired the first shot, but be that as it may, the bloody work was instantly begun. Andrews fired both barrels of his shot-gun, which were loaded with smell bird shot, into Ridgeway's breast. Andrews received three shots: one in one of his arms near his wrist; another in the breast, and a third in the head. After receiving the shot in the breast, Andrews threw down snot in the breast. Andrews threw down his gun and started to run, and as he did so exclaimed, "O. Jerry don't!" or words to that effect, but Ridgeway fired again (evidently as Andrews was falling, as the wound he had received in the breast was would be had received in the breast was mortal), the ball striking him in the back of the head. It asserted Ridgeway fired five shots. An old grudge existed between the parties, and it is alleged that Ridgeway had threatened to shoot Andrews. It is not known whether any words reseal between the parties where words passed between the parties when Ridgeway rode up the road the first time, or whether Andrews was aware of the presence of the other before te discove ed him riding down upon him, with revolver drawn. It is very evident, from the fact of his gun being loaded with bird shot. that Andrews was not out seeking a broil, and it is probable that he was going to his field to shoot birds, as was his custom. No attempt was made to arrest Ridgeway, though several citizen conversed with him subsequent to the affair, and he was per-mitted to leisurely make his escape. An inquest was held on the body by Justice Booker, and he issued a warrant for Ridge-way's arrest in accordance with the jury's findings, and an officer was appointed to fulfil the mandate of the court. It seems strange that in a civilized and law abid ing community a man can shoot another cown, and no citizen be found who will attempt to take and hold the offender, that justice may be enforced. If the man was not guilty of murder why did he ron away? If he was guilty he should have been arrested, as, indeed, he should have been, under any circumstances. It looks very bad and demands severe comment. More value should be placed on human life without having a proper judicial investi-gation of the matter. We hope our Su-pervisors will oner a reward for Ridge-

OFF THE GRADE-HORSE KILLED .-One day last week a teamster named Hutchings, when coming down Glass' grade, from the saw mill, met with an accident which resulted in the instant killing of one of his horses and the injury of another. He was coming down the hill, which is very precipitous and dusty, with a wagon, heavily loaded with lumber. He had locked his wheels with an ordinary brake, but it was insufficient to hold the wagon properly, and it was soon thrust forward on the horses, and they become unmanagable, and run off the grade, wi h the result we have men-tioned. This is the third accident that has occurred on this grade during the Summer, and it would seem about teamsters were learning to rough lock their wheels before starting down it.

ACCIDENT .- On last Friday Mr. C. C. Converse, who resides on the Fresno river. met with a very painful accident. He was leading a couple of horses and one of them got frightered, on account of the haltar rope rubbing his legs, and began to kick and jump, jerking Mr. Converse suddenly around, breaking his collar bone on the left side. He was immediately brought to town and received prompt and efficient surgical treatment from Dr. L.

The Verdict of California. Californians, as a rule, take nothing for granted.

Any article that likes intrinsic merit is sure to be a dead failure in the Golden State. Twelve years ago HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS were quietly introduced here. Their uses were plainly set forth, and the community was invited to give them a fair trial, as a remedy for dyspepsia, biliousness, intermittent and remittent fevers, gen eral debility, nervous affections, and all the ordidary diseases of the digestive and secretive organs. They were also reccommended as an appetizing and invigorating preparation, and as a preventitive of complaints of an epidemic character. The result may be summed up in a few words. A demand for the article immediately sprang up, and has ever since been increasing in a progressive ratio, until HOSTETTER'S BITTERS have become a leading commercial staple in the Caliand Restorative, in the Pacific States alone, is upwards of One Million Bottles per year, and its popularity overshadows that of every other medicine, proprietary or otherwise, sold on this side of the centinent. This fact is so notorious, that commerce has gradually declined, both in the cities and at the mines. The perfect purity of people too prone to exhaustive isbor of body and mind, are appreciated by the medical profession, and it is prescribed as a stomachic and alterative to the exclusion, in a great degree, of all the un-medicated alcoholic stimulants.

Pure Blood. Muddy Water.

Pure blood may be compared to pure water, and impure blood to muddy water. If you pass muddy water through muslin you soil it: continue the process and you cover it with thick mud. Blood passes through all parts of the body; if good and pure it nourishes and cleanses the parts it goes through. If impure it leaves more or less dirt behind it. BRANDRETH'S PILLS are the medicine wanted, because they are made on purpose to take dirty humors out of the blood, and they never fail. These pills cure scrofula, even of forty years' standing; they have cured cases of rheumatism when the patient had not walked for four years; of paralysis, where the legs had lost their power of movement for seventeen years. The evidence in these cases cannot be disputed. Is there a town in the world where such evidences exist not? If Brandreth's Pills have been much used there we know that such evidence can be found. But be sure and see upon each box my name in the Government stamp, in white letters.

It is an External and Internal Remedy. For Summer Complaint, or any other form of bowel disease in children or adults, it is an almost certain cure, and has without doubt been more successful in curing the various kinds of CHOLERA than any other known remedy, or the most skillful physician. ### WHEN WE TWO PARTED.

When we two parted
In silence and tears,
Half broken-hearted
To sever for years,
Pale grew thy cheek, and cold,
Colder thy kiss;
Truly that hour foretold
Sorrow to this.

The dew of the morning
Sunk chill on my brow—
It felt like the warning
Cf what I feel now.
Thy vows are all broken,
And light is thy fame;
I hear thy name spoken,
And share in its shame.

In secret we met—
In silence I grieve,
That thy beart could forget,
Thy spirit deceive.
If I should meet thee
After long years.
How should I greet thee?—
With silence and tears.

FOR THE CHILDREN.

About thirty years ago, said Judge P: I stepped into a book-store in Cincinnati, in search of some books that I wanted .-While there a little ragged boy not over twelve years of age, came in and inquired for a geography.

Plenty of them, was the salesman's reply.

How much do they cost ?

One dollar, my lad. I did not know they were so much.

He turned to go out, and even opened the door, but closed it again, and came back. I have got only sixty-one cents, said he, could you let me have a geography, and wait a little while for the rest of the money?

How eagerly his little bright eyes looked up for an answer; and he seemed to shrink within his ragged clothes when the man not very kindly told him he could not!

The disappointed little fellow looked up to me, with a very poor attempt at a smile, and left the store. I followed and overtook him.

And what now? Lasked. Try another place, sir.

Shall I go, too, and see how you suc-

Will you try again? I asked. Yes, sir, I shall try them all or I should not know whether I could get one.

We walked into the fifth store, and the little fellow walked up manfully and told the gentleman just what he wanted and how much money he had.

You want the book very much? said the proprietor.

Yes, sir, very much.

Why do you want it so very much? To study sir. I can't go to school, but I study when I can at home. All the boys have got one, and they will be ahead of I want to learn of the places he used to ing fowls should take exercise. If they

Yes, just like the new ones.

It will do just as well, then, and I will have eleven cents left toward buying some other book. I am glad they did not let me have one at any one of the other places.

The bockseller looked up inquiringly, and I told him what I had seen of the little fellow. He was much pleased, and effaced. when he brought the book along, I saw a nice new pencil and some clean white paper in it.

A present, my lad, for your perseverance Always have courage like that, and you will make your mark, said the bookseller. Thank you, sir, you are so very good.

What is your name?

William Haverly, sir.

Do you want any more books? I now More than I can ever get, he replied, glancing at the books that filled the shelves. I gave him a bank note. It will buy some for you. I said.

Tears of joy came into his eyes.

The fresho Capositor then came a most terrible storm that would have sunk all on board had it not been for the captain.

Every spar was laid low the sudder was almost useless, and a great leak had shown itself, threatening to fill the ship. The crew were all strong, willing men, and the mates were practical seamen of the first-class; but after pumping hard for one whole night, and still the water was gaining upon them, they gave up in despair and prepared to take to the boats, though they might have known that no small boat could ride in such a sea. The captain, who had been below with his charts now came up. He saw how matters stood, and with a voice that I heard far above the roar of the tempest, he ordered every man to his post.

The captain then started below to examine the leak. As he passed me I asked him if there was any hope. He looked at me and then at the other passengers who had crowded up to hear the reply, and said rebukingly:

Yes, sir, there is hope as long as one inch of this deck remains above water. when I see none of it, then I shall abandon the vessel, and not before; nor one of my crew, sir. Everything shall be done to save it and if we fail it will not be from inaction. Bear a hand every one of you at the pumps.

Thrice during the day did we despair. but the captain's daun'less courage, perseverance and powerful will, mastered every mind on board, and we went to work again.

I will land you safely at the dock in Liverpool, said he, if you will only be men. And he did land us safely, but the vessel sunk, moored to the dock. The captain stood on the deck of the sinking vessel, receiving the thanks and the blessings of the passengers, as they passed down the gang plank. I was the last to leave. ### HOUSE, FARM AND GARDEN.

How to FRED Fowls.-Fowls are not fed for the mere sake of keeping them alive and healthy on the least possible amount of food. We wish to convert the food into flesh, or into eggs. In feeding for quick fattening it is understood that the poultry should be made to eat as much as possible. Our rule for feeding is to throw out the feed twice a day as long as the fowls will run after it and no longer. We are told, and it is our own experience also, that fowls thus fed will eat consider. ably more than if they can go to a feeding box and help themselves at all times. We want fowls to eat; the more they eat, within reasonable bounds, the more they will lay, and the longer they will lay, and me. Besides, my father was a sailor, and the better condition they will be in Laycan go to a trough and eat at any time they wish, they will take next to none .-If they are fed but twice a day they will hunt insects and wander much more. If fed soft soft feed such as wheat bran mixed with corn meal or ground oats, they will be hungry again in two hours after feeding, and be off after insects and the like. Give feed, then, only to adult fowls while they will run after it; soft feed morning, whole grain at evening. Keep them supplied with gravel, lime (plastering, or better, oyster shell), ashes to dust in, and tresh, pure water, some meat in winter, and they will be healthy and prolific.

It is asserted that ink stains can be taken out of furniture by putting a few drops of spirits of niter in a teaspoonful of water, touch the spot with a feather dipped in the mixture; on the ink disappearing, rub it over immediately with a rag wetted in cold water, or there will be a white mark which will not be easily

To prevent sunstroke it is recommended to sew a thin piece of sponge in the top of the hat and moisten it with water in the course of the day.

SEWING MACHINES!

GRAND CROSS OF THE LEGION

To Elias Howe, Jr., as Inventor,

And Gold Medal for

FOR SEWING MACHINES.

THE Machine which bears his name has long been regarded as the standard of excellence, and has become celebrated the world over. The work done by these Machines is unsurpassed—sewing the thinnest muslin or the thickest cloth, with equal facility; and requiring no extra adjusting for uneven thickness or passing over seams; it turns its own hem as it sews, sewing a seam stronger than the fabric itself. To see it hem, feli, tuck, braid, cord, quilt and gather, it seems more like a thing of life than a machine moved by the will of the operator. It is capable of doing any description of sewing that is required in a 'amily; and also for seamstresses and dressmakers it will be found invaluable. They seldom or never give any trouble in operating, and in a word, are the

Notwithstanding their great superiority, they are sold at prices as low as other first-class Machines.

A Medallion likeness of Mr. Howe is imbedded in the plates of every Howe Machine, without which none are genuine. Every purchaser of a Sewing Machine, should inquire for Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a raliable protector against them. While adapted to milderforms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given against incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and, indeed, as all are sometimes subject to colos and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or grav hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair cheeked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Ite occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely
